March 29th :

We had the pleasure to meet mrs Brabdry in Lyon for the Quai du Polar and we've been lucky to ask her a few questions.

Jamey started writing since she was 5 years old and read a lot of books during her childhood. Then in 2013, she started writing The Wild Inside. Even though she doesn't like to do drafts, for this book, she had no options. And now she knows which mistakes she will not do again.

To create an Alaskan mood, Bradbury watched a lot of videos, went a lot on social medias and talked to mushers. She wanted to write an horror book so she did writing exercises and read a lot of books. She loves vampires so that's why Tracy has vampire intuitions. Finally, her book is a mix between a lot of literature register.

Tracy is a very particular teen, but she's totally different than Jamey. She didn't get inspired by anyone to create this character, but she was inspired by her own family to create this strong link.

At the beginning of the book, we have only Tracy's thoughts, so we can't figure the story because she emphasizes everything (because she's a teen), and it's to create surprise. Tracy asks a lot of questions to herself because she's finishing her childhood and she's gonna enter into her womanhood.

We know at the beginning that Tracy's mother passed away when she was little. We can see Tracy's mother only on the flashbacks. She has to follow rules even if her mother's dead. And after, she will know that this is only to protect her because of the gift her mom left her...

At the moment, there will not be a movie but you can buy the book in library.

Thank you
Jamey
Bradbury !:)
